

Minister of education and science of the republic of Kazakhstan Erlan Sagadiev said: “the Transition to English in high school and at University – this is the main goal of improving competitiveness. This year, we launched a massive training of trainers. About 4 thousand teachers have already taken courses. In September, another 8 thousand will start advanced course.”

Cultural project "Trinity of languages" proposed by the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan N..Nazarbayev, in full can be considered a long-term development strategies of Kazakhstan. The implementation of this project will largely determine the formation of a new generation of Kazakhs who speak several languages, with ample opportunities for positive growth of their essential forces and the formation of competitiveness both in the professional sphere and in personal self-realization.

THE YOUTH ON THE WAY TO MODERNIZATION IN KAZAKHSTAN

Abstract

The article is devoted to the strategies of our President and the Youth of Kazakhstan which will become at the helm and continue the baton, strengthening of the state's positions in the International arena.

Key words: Cyrillic alphabet, Latin alphabet, consciousness, modernization, new competencies, the youth policy.

The Republic of Kazakhstan is going to successfully implement the goals of our country's entry into the top thirty countries, the Head of State, caring for the future generation, fulfilling its promises, is leading our country along the path of modernization and improvement of our state.

Supporting the initiative of the President, I want to note on behalf of all young people of Kazakhstan that we support the transition of the state language to the Latin alphabet. This transition will increase the interest of studying the state language from foreign audiences, as it will be easier for them to understand the Kazakh language. I agree that it will not be difficult to move the new generation from the familiar Cyrillic alphabet to the Latin alphabet, since a truly new generation is already fluent in English, German, French and other languages. I just want to note that the young people of Kazakhstan should help and help the younger in solving the global task!

Today we are talking about the program article of the Head of State "A View into the Future: Modernization of Public Consciousness" ("Bolashak Bagdar: Rukhani Zharyrou", which, in my opinion, will also cause a lively public discussion and great interest").

Expressing my position on this issue, I can note that the registered initiative by our President is new and unique, as this step will allow us to ensure the active position of the younger generation and their ability to compete in the future.

Speaking about the youth of Kazakhstan, I would like to note that for the state, the comprehensively developed youth is a priority, which will later become at the helm and continue the baton, with the possibility of continuity of generations, strengthening of the state's positions in the international arena.

At the same time, every Kazakhstani has the task of self-education and improvement. A person must keep pace with the times - expanding his consciousness, acquiring new competencies

Presidential treatment with software reflection on the future of Kazakhstan's society through culture and spirituality is our strategic task. In my opinion, it should be regarded as a humanistic idea of equal and mutually beneficial development of the culture and spirit of all ethnic groups and the mechanism of fraternal accord. The Head of State pays special attention to the role of the school and universities, as a whole of education. After all, a university and a school is a state structure, where our young schoolchildren pass for the first time the lessons of socialization. And it is very important that these lessons are valuable.

N. Nazarbayev emphasized that patriotic mood and atmosphere of goodwill are very important to the society. And if the spirit of unity is in the air and the desire to make the country more reliable, richer, then according to the law of communicating vessels, good deeds will grow in economy, business and the joy of sensation itself. It is impossible today to exclude the fact that in our society there is a part of people with fuzzy identity, such a vacuum of civil identity weakens the formation of civil unity.

The role of culture is where everything begins. And this is what remains after all. And if we declare culture as a strategic spiritual resource of our development, then many problems in economics, technology and even interpersonal relations are resolved.

On television, in all the media, in schools, universities, families, we should educate in our youth the spiritual substance called conscience.

New technologies will be developed, discoveries will be made, but spiritual values and fundamental knowledge, the basis will remain unchanged, giving the people of Kazakhstan more and more strength for new achievements and victories.

The article of the President reflects the nature of the people of Kazakhstan, national priorities, demonstrates the "cultural code of the nation." The President outlined the directions of development of our basic spiritual values: science, culture, education. A new concept of consolidation and strengthening of the national identity is presented, which serves as a reference point for every citizen of the country.

The implementation of the program guidelines identified in the article of the Head of State will further strengthen the youth's sense of patriotism and civil identity, will contribute to the strengthening of public harmony and unity of the people of Kazakhstan. Patriotism takes its roots from a common history and culture, language, family. Active creative patriotism must be supported by the achievements of the country, the real deeds of the heroes of our time. The article reflects the most important, the most valuable and close for those who work for the benefit of our Motherland - the Republic of Kazakhstan. Our Motherland is not only land, territory, but also a single social and cultural community of bearers of common worldview values, language, traditions, and customs.

As for the Romanization of the Kazakh language, we find this program very bold and interesting. Perhaps it is the transition to a Latin letter that will make it easier for the younger generation to master the state language thanks to the analogy with English, which is also written in Latin. It is possible that the Latin script will also help us to synthesize more deeply into the world community. And it will simplify the process of knowledge of the Kazakh language for foreign citizens.

I consider important the main message of the Head of State's article, which is the need for every Kazakhstani in a competitive environment to constantly progress, move forward, not counting on the manna of heaven. Looking back, in its history, - to abandon the remnants of the past - nepotism, laziness, others - and use the best traditions of the people. Being modern is not easy today, but to do everything possible to be modern tomorrow. The principle of competitiveness is the most important principle that the National Leader laid the foundation for the future construction of the Kazakhstani society.

Therefore it is very important to know the language of international communication, study in advanced universities, develop quality education in Kazakhstan, pay close attention to the upbringing of the younger generation.

In his program article, the leader of the nation offers us a new look at the Kazakh. Today it is a person who is modern, not burdened to some extent by traditions that would restrain his human development and his adaptation in the global world. Most people own the Internet, have a clear position on many issues, are the bearers of the culture of their own people and respect the culture of the peoples of other countries.

Of course, the main factor that will ensure our future prosperity is the solid traditions of the unity of the people. Tolerance is the basis of Kazakhstani society, and it is very important that spiritual tolerance becomes the principle of Kazakhstan's functioning in the future. Peacefulness, cohesion, interaction, aspiration, professing one's faith, not dictating one's principles of worship to others, is something that must be preserved and carried on to generations of Kazakhstanis. This is inherent in the traditions of the Kazakh people and is being realized now in our country under the leadership of the Head of State.

I think that the vocation of young people is to understand and comprehend the tasks of the President in his program article. Every young man needs to be in the trend of the main events, new trends and technological process for the successful entry of our country into the 30 most developed countries of the world.

No less interesting for us is the third point of modernization - the preservation of national identity. The issue of preserving and combining a national identity and preserving the language, culture, traditions and literature of ethnos has always been and remains one of the most effectively solved. And we, like no one else, understand how deeply the Head of State invested in these words.

We also share the President's desire to build knowledge and education into a kind of cult. For us, as for young people, the acquisition of new knowledge is a necessary condition for existence and successful development. We fully support this initiative and will strive to implement it.
